

The Seattle Times

13 fun places to go for team-building experiences in the Seattle area

 Among the team-building activities available at Salish Lodge & Spa is the Cocktail Challenge, in which Salish bartenders provide tips and ingredients that the teams must use to create their own mixed drink. (Courtesy of Salish Lodge & Spa)

7 of 9

Bond with your colleagues over arcade games, sailing, cooking, forging metal, blowing glass – or even smashing things to bits.

A team wasn't built in a day ... or was it?

Take your team-building exercises off-site with one of these 13 action-packed, Seattle-area options. Play arcade games, cook a chef-approved feast or create MIY (mix your own) cocktails while building cohesiveness, cooperation and understanding between team members.

And even if the bonding is only temporary, it sure beats putting together marshmallow structures in the conference room down the hall.

Bell Harbor International Conference Center. You work together, so why not try playing together? In the happy-hour-with-a-twist Pub Olympics, team members, with drinks in hand, compete in activities like cornhole, bocce and giant Jenga.